The screenshot shows a mobile application interface for creating a site. At the top, there are two toggle switches: 'Add www. alias (Make sure point to www.alias)' and 'Create Database', both of which are turned on. Below these is a section titled 'Select database type' with a refresh icon and a dropdown menu currently showing 'MariaDB (11.0)'. A yellow warning box contains the text: 'Note : Database Name and Database User Only alphanumeric characters allowed'. Underneath is a toggle switch for 'Choose Existing Database' which is turned off. The form then has three input fields: 'Database name' with the value 'demodb', 'Database user' with the value 'demouserdb', and 'Database Password' which is masked with dots and has a red 'Generate' button with a gear icon next to it. At the bottom of the form is a large red button labeled 'Create Site'. A red arrow points from the 'Generate' button to the 'Create Site' button.
